Soaring flames near OLG church lure concerned spectators

BY EDGAR PEREZ

Burning limbs of ancient oaks which sent flames some 50 feet into the night sky near Our Lady of The Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis Tuesday night drew the curious and the concerned from a wide area of the city.

Source of the high-climbing conflagration was a burning storage shed behind a vacant gymnasium building on property adjacent to Our Lady Academy, the high school operated by OLG Parish.

The shed, which contained old paper, paint, paint thinner and other combustibles, was totally destroyed in the 8:08 p.m. blaze, according to Fire Chief Andrew Lizana.

Spot fires also erupted on the roof of an adjacent wooden structure, but that building and others nearby were saved by the Bay St. Louis firefighters at the scene.

The shed and gymnasium structures sit to the rear of beachfront property currently owned by Merchants Bank.

Hancock Fire Marshal Jay Marsh and Officer Tom Burleson of the Bay St. Louis Police Department questioned several spectators at the scene in an attempt to make an immediate determination of the cause of the fire.

Lizana said the blaze possibly resulted from suspected acts of vandalism earlier Tuesday.

First at the scene Tuesday night were Lizana, Captain Mike Willumitis, and Firefighters Pam SanFilippo and Arthur Farve.

They were assisted by Lieutenants Alphonse Sheppard and Gary Maurice, Firefighters Terry McCrory and Louis Prendergast, and Dispatcher Gayle Roy, all of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department, as well as by members of the Bay PD.

Also at the scene were Mayor Victor Franckiewicz and Police Chief Ray Murphy.

Some five minutes after the alarm was received on the shed fire, Bay firefighters responded to an 8:13 p.m. alarm at 426 Main St., residence of Paul Backe.

Lizana said that fire, which resulted in damage to stove, kitchen and dining room, was brought under control by the homeowner before firemen arrived.

Commission okays port repairs

BY D.C. HARVILL

At a meeting Tuesday, the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission decided to take immediate action toward making necessary repairs to a bulkhead on operations at Port Bienville.

The bulkhead, located at the ports turning basin, is the only location at the port where barges can be loaded and unloaded, and is probably the busiest place at Port Bienville.

When the bulkhead, a metal structure, was built in the early seventies, wooden fenders were in place to protect it and the vessels tied to it. Most of the damage has occurred because the vessels are now bumping against bare metal.

A preliminary estimate presented by engineer Carlos Gorden places the cost of repairs at $196,000. The repairs would include replacement of both the tie-back rods which anchor the bulkhead in place, and the protective timbers.

Gordon pointed out that for the $196,000 the structure, at its current replacement value, would be worth $581,000.

Commissioner Dave McDonald stated that nothing has been spent on maintaining the bulkhead since it was constructed, but now it has deteriorated to the point where it can no longer be neglected.

Gordon added that, if the protected timbers are replaced periodically, the bulkhead should be expected to last another twenty-five years.

In other business the commission:

Decided an estimate should be prepared for renovation of a building located on county property at Bayou Caddy and for repairs to the bulkhead fronting the bayou at the same location. The building, which Commissioner Walter "Pete" Beebe said, "doesn't live up to the image of this commission", is located on property under lease to Hancock County Fishermen's Association and formerly had been operated as a concession shop.

Discussed the construction of T-hangers, individual hangers for small aircraft, proposed for Stennis Airport. The main concern centered around which materials should be used to negate any possibility in the future of liable action against the county. Commissioner Beebe informed the commission that the airport committee would soon be attending a seminar dealing with hanger construction and would report their findings at a later meeting. The composition of the access ways to the hangers was also discussed. Apparently there are many options ranging from gravel to asphalt. According to the cost breakdown provided by Gorden, the cost for an asphalt surface

Post office site to be bid again

BY DENA BISNETTE

A second set of bids will be taken on a new site for a proposed post office for the Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore areas.

Bertie Jensen, postmistress at Lakeshore, said Tuesday that officials at the U.S. Postal Service's property acquisition office in Memphis, Tenn., had agreed to re-advertise the site.

Jensen said bid packages may be picked up at the Lakeshore Post Office. The telephone number there is 467-2413.

According to the postmistress, the officials in Memphis "understood people didn't see the advertisement" the first time.

Only two bids were received the first time the site advertisement was published and Jensen said she understood that those two would be considered with any new bids received.

"One place was good but the post office didn't want it and the other one, well, everybody else objected," she said.

Last year, postal officials had announced that they planned to close the Clermont Harbor post office, consolidate it with Lakeshore and seek a new location in the Lakeshore and Lower Bay road areas.

A group of Lakeshore residents will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the Gulfview Elementary School Gymnasium to discuss the matter, according to Lakeshore resident Marion Green.

Green said about 30 people met last week with several postal officials, including Norman Dilley of the district office in Gulfport and Larry Herndon of the real estate acquisition office in Memphis, and that the majority objected to the site selected from the first advertisement.

The site, located at the intersection of Lower Bay and Clermont Harbor roads near St. Ann's Church, is regarded by residents as a dangerous intersection, Green said.

The second objection is that the site is in Clermont Harbor and that the Lakeshore residents had no input in the site selection, although a public hearing was conducted last year in Clermont Harbor.

Herndon, in a long-distance interview from Memphis after the citizens' meeting, was announced, said the post office considered only the objections regarding the first bidding advertisement in deciding to re-advertise.

He said the objections to the site selection were not considered and that the postal service's only concern is saving landowners in the area the proper opportunity to offer their property as a site.

ANNA ANDERSON FR. CLEMENT MATHIS

ANNA ANDERSON
Anna C. Anderson, 74, died at 4:30 a.m. Friday at her home at 5406 N. Sherwood, Peoria, Ill., where she had lived for the past 20 years.

A Peoria resident since 1961, she was born April 2, 1914, in Stockton, Calif. to Herman and Ora Belding Meyer. She married William R. Anderson in 1949 in Mexico.

Surviving are her husband; two sons, Richard C. Hansen of San Diego and Steven M. Anderson of Humboldt, Iowa; one stepson, Larry W. Anderson of Antioch; one daughter, Sherry K. Schwabacher of Bay St. Louis; one stepdaughter, Mary Beth Steneking of Anaheim, Calif.; 13 grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and one sister, Mrs. Peter J. (Benora) McAndrews of Vista, Calif.

She was a member of St. Paul's Cathedral, where she was an active worker in its pantry. She was also a member of Methodist Medical Center Service League.

A graduate of Mills College in Oakland, Calif., she had been an inhalation therapist at St. Francis Medical Center in the 1960s and early 1970s.

She was an aviatrix, having flown in the Ruth Chatterton Derby and later in the Powder Puff Derby in California.

She has donated her body to medical science. Memorial services will be announced later. Cumerford-Endsley Memorial Home was in charge of arrangements.

Memorials may be made to her church or to Methodist Medical Center.

FR. CLEMENT MATHIS

Father Clement Mathis, SVD, a resident of St. Augustine Seminary in Bay St. Louis and a veteran missionary of the Divine Word Southern Missions, died on Monday, April 25, 1988 at St. Elizabeth Seton Hospital, Austin, Texas, after suffering a heart attack.

At the time of his death, Father Mathis was serving temporarily as administrator of St.

Margaret Mary Parish, Giddings, Texas.

Born in Zwischenwasser (Vorarlberg) Austria, of the late John and Antonia Schwarz Mathis, Clement was seventh child in a family of 13 children. He is survived by brothers and sisters in Austria.

He entered the Society of the Divine Word Novitiate at St. Gabriel's in Moedling, Austria, in 1931.

After his second year of Novitiate and first vows in 1933, he taught one year in the minor seminary in Austria before coming to the Divine Word Seminary in Techny, Ill. for his theological studies in 1935.

He professed his final vows on June 21, 1937 and was ordained to the priesthood on August 14, 1938, by the late Bishop O'Brien of Chicago.

With the exception of a sabbatical year in Austria where he was assistant pastor of Holy Trinity Parish, Venice, Fr. Mathis spent his entire ministry in the South, serving at the preparatory seminary in Bay St. Louis; assistant at Holy Ghost, Jackson, Miss. from 1941-45; as pastor of St. Francis, Yazoo City, 1945-50; St. Joseph's, Meridian, 1955-64; Holy Cross, Austin, Tex. 1964-73; St. Benedict the Moor, Dusan, La. 1973-79; as assistant pastor for the year 1979-80, Immaculate Heart of Mary, Lafayette; and administrator and pastor of St. Peters, Pine Bluff, Ark., 1980-84.

After his sabbatical in Austria, 1984-85 Fr. Mathis returned to the USA in July of 1985 as a resident at St. Augustine Seminary in Bay St. Louis.

A wake service will be held on Sunday, May 1 at 7 p.m. in the Divine Word Seminary Chapel, Bay St. Louis.

The Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated 10:30 a.m. Monday, May 2 at the Seminary Chapel followed by interment in the Seminary Cemetery.

A hard-working and dedicated servant of the Divine Word Missionaries, Fr. Clement Mathis will be especially remembered for his gentleness and charity.

LAW GREETED BY MOB ON SYCAMORE ST.

By D.C. Harvill

Saturday night, while investigating a report of shots having been fired, law enforcement officers became the objects of a mob scene.

At about 10:00 p.m. Bay Police received a call reporting shots having been fired on Sycamore St. Officer Tommy Burleson upon arriving at the scene heard two more shots fired. He was unsure of the intended target.

In the mean time a crowd, presumably having left a softball game which had just ended, gathered at the corner of Sycamore and St. Francis streets. The crowd, apparently not happy with the law's presence in the neighborhood, began harassing the officers and throwing rocks and bottles.

When the situation was finally brought into control approximately twenty officers had responded, and six individuals were arrested on misdemeanor charges.

Arrested are: Kevin Galloway, 20, apt. 22 Sycamore St.; Eileen Jones, 27, 614 Booker St.; Parnell Galloway, 18, apt. 20 St. Francis St.; Clyde Saucier, 20, 140 512 Main St.; David Thompson, 31, 140 Cathy Dr.; John Galloway, 20, 509 Sycamore.; all of Bay St. Louis.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a suspect in the shooting incident.

Officers from Waveland Police Department and Hancock County Sheriff's Department also were at the scene.

MADD seeks new members

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock/Harrison County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) is seeking members in the Coastal area.

MADD promotes safety on highways and are trying to change attitudes towards drinking and driving.

Persons seeking further information can call Mary Adkinson, chairman at 467-2802 or Susan McKinley, MADD president at 255-1205.

Membership dues are $20 annually for adults; $10 for students and senior citizens over age 65.

The organization is in need of more members, according to Waveland Patrolman John Wikerson, the club's advisor.

Other officers are Mary Ann Wilkerson, vice-president; Darlene Bilbo, secretary; and Melba Seymour, treasurer.

The local MADD organization would like to inform the public that:

—Every 22 minutes someone dies due to an alcohol related accident.

—Alcohol related accidents are the major cause of death of our teenagers.

—Over 23,000 people die every year on our highways due to alcohol related accidents.

—Driving drunk is a crime punishable through our court system.

Person interested in joining can send a check or money order to, Hancock/Harrison MADD, P.O. Box 294, Bay St. Louis, MS. 39520.

Quotables by CUEVAS

On Friday morning the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission in cooperation with the Board of Supervisors and Chamber of Commerce will hold a Salute to Business and Industry breakfast at Diamondhead's Country Club.

As many of you can remember, last year's Salute to Industry was a very good success and had a lot of participation by industry and business leaders of the county.

We are hoping tomorrow's Salute to Industry will be the same.

Persons not scheduled to attend tomorrow's big event can call Libby Milner, chamber executive director, at 467-9048 for details.

Libby tells us that breakfast will be served at 7:15 a.m. with the program beginning at 7:30 a.m.

Buz Olsen, Port & Harbor executive director, says the program is scheduled to end at 8:30 a.m.

"A one day Salute to Business and Industry is a small way of saying thank you to the people who offer jobs all year long," Randy Castello, committee member said, in reference to Friday's big celebration.

We hope to see many of you at the Salute to Industry breakfast.

Monday afternoon we saw three teenagers, as an old saying goes, with a lot of air between their ears, as they were trying to play chicken with a freight train at the Second Street Crossing by City Hall.

I could just see one of them getting a foot caught in a space at the crossing and be zapped by the engine of the freight.

As you noted, I said it was teenagers, youngsters who should know better. Since this was near an elementary school, just think of the bad impression this could make on the very young.

I wish the three boys would have an opportunity of standing alongside one of these diesel engines one day when a train is stopped. If they would look up at the size of a freight engine, maybe they could possibly grasp how stupid it is to play chicken with a train.

Play ball is a sound echoing around all playgrounds with many types of baseball and softball programs underway.

This means youngsters are at the ball fields and many are riding back and forth on their bicycles.

There is a serious need for all motorists to be extremely cautious around playgrounds, as speed limits are reduced and children may step out on a street chasing a ball.

It is hoped all of the boys and girls involved in baseball and softball activities in our area will have a safe and enjoyable season.

The President's Column

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Two months ago in this column I wrote that if 1988 was to be the "Year of Making Government Work Better" state government had to get its house in order.

And a key to doing that, I wrote, was to shrink the executive branch of state government to a more manageable size.

I can now report with great pleasure that we are well on the way to doing just that.

I promised to do something about this problem, and with the legislature's help, we are hard at work developing a plan to streamline state government.

Already, public hearings have been held in Raymond just outside of Jackson; Meridian; Goodman in Holmes County; Perkinston in Stone County; and Fulton in Itawamba County.

This input will be an important consideration of the 25-member State Government Reorganization Commission I appointed last month. Consultants experienced in helping other states streamline their governments also have been hired.

I believe the end result will be recommendations on how we can deliver vital services to Mississippians with greater efficiency and at a significant cost savings.

The next step will be to take those recommendations to the Legislature, which I firmly believe shares my interest in giving taxpayers the most for their money through a more responsive state government. Streamlining state government is such an important issue that I am considering a special session of the Legislature to deal exclusively with that topic before the next regular legislative session begins in January 1989.

Such a consolidation of state government could free up millions of dollars to finance other pressing needs that have been deferred for a lack of money.

Currently, there are 135 state agencies or commissions, many of which are run by independent boards that are not accountable to any individual. That makes it almost impossible to blame anyone when things don't work, and it is not in the best spirit of democracy.

The goal of the study group is to come up with a plan to consolidate those 135 agencies, boards and commissions to no more than 15 with agency heads appointed by the governor. By giving the governor power to appoint agency heads, the public will know who to blame if an agency does not deliver.

The call for a more efficient state government goes all the way back to Gov. Mike Conner who in 1932 described the executive branch of government as overgrown and "complex, confusing, costly" and "inefficient."

That is even more true today. But, by our actions this year we are well on the way toward restoring sanity to Mississippi state government.

Most state officials believe as I do that for every tax dollar you spend, you should receive a dollar's worth of state services in return.

State government consolidation will help achieve that goal.

News from the Capitol City

By Ellen Ann Fentress

The 1988 session of the Mississippi Legislature is headed toward overtime, with several of the major issues of the year—teacher pay raises, settling the rest of the state budget and consideration of a new state constitution—yet to be resolved.

The House last week refused to accept a proposed House-Senate compromise on raising state employee salaries. No resolution of raising state employee pay is expected until the House and Senate agree on specifics of raising teacher pay.

Both chambers agree to the eventual $3,700 average pay raises for teachers, but when the raises will become effective is at issue.

Last week marked the deadline for floor action on money bills in both chambers. Still to come are compromise agreements between the House and Senate on the exact amounts of appropriations.

On Friday, House Appropriations Committee Chairman Charlie Capps conceded that meeting the Apr. 30 deadline for filing proposed House-Senate compromise plans on spending bills will be improbable.

"Obviously we're going to miss our deadline, and the session will have to be extended, at least on paper," the Cleveland representative said.

On the push for a statewide referendum to consider writing a new state constitution, one House negotiator predicted possible death for the push. The bill went into negotiation between the House and Senate in February. Both the House and Senate agreed to place a referendum on calling a state constitutional convention on the November ballot.

The house version included restrictions on tampering with current state law on homestead exemption tax breaks and one requiring a three-fifths passage margin for tax bills in the Legislature.

The Senate version put no restrictions on possible action if a constitutional convention were called.

However, a major difference is how the ballot will read in November. The House wants voters to be asked yes or no on calling a constitutional convention in the summer of 1989. The Senate wants to ask voters to vote on calling a convention or changing the current document by amendment, which already is the route to change.

Money was the center of attention last week as the appropriations deadline passed. Two of the most significant votes took place in the House. Legislators broke tradition and approved a bond issue to pay for university repairs. In the past, repairs have been paid for by direct appropriations. Opponents of the bond issue said it would open the door to using bonds to finance other parts of state government and lead to more deficit spending.

The first House plan approved authorized a $32 million bond issue for university projects to the bond issue as well. Opponents of adding junior college projects to the bill said that junior college officials had agreed to stay out of the university repair effort.

House Ways and Means Chairman Tommy Walman said the $10 million expenditure would be a waste because junior colleges have no priority spending plan.

Another money bill triggered a battle on the House floor. The House overwhelmingly voted 111-11 to limit the appropriation to the Institute for Technology Development to $1 million instead of $2 million as recommended by the House Appropriations Committee. The institute is a private, non-profit corporation charged with turning research into commercial technology. Its goal in 1984 was to bring 25,000 jobs to the state in 10 years. ITD supporters admitted the count on jobs generated so far is about 200. Critics blasted the institute for spending almost $127,000 to furnish its new Jackson office last year.

Gov. Ray Mabus' first veto drew friction in the House as the week ended. Mabus vetoed a bill that would authorize hospitals to throw out graphic data after four years. Mabus argued that the data might be needed beyond that time limit. The House attempted to override the veto before leaving for the weekend, arguing that the bill had prompted little discussion when passed and that Mabus had failed to sufficiently explain the veto. But the veto stood when the House in a 51-67 vote failed to muster the needed 79 votes to override.

HOUSE
SB 2960. The House voted 84-37 to approve issuing $32 million in bonds to pay for building repairs at state universities, a change from the past policy of directly appropriating money. Compretta voted yes.

SB 2960. The House returned the following day to add $10 million for repairs and renovations at state junior colleges, approving the expanded bill 90-30. Compretta voted yes.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

By BILL MINOR

JACKSON—Most Mississippians would agree that 82 counties are far too many and too costly for a relatively poor state with only 2.6 million people to maintain.

But the question that logically follows is: When and how will there ever be county consolidation? In view of the great resistance within the Legislature to even bring about consolidation of road management within the existing counties, the answer is probably, Never.

Certainly there has been no concerted effort by any governor or group of legislators in my memory to tackle the emotion-paced issue of county consolidation. At least some authorities over the years have been thinking about alternatives to having too many counties in Mississippi.

Contrary to what a lot of Mississippians may think, counties are not constitutional entities. They are subdivisions of the state, and exist to serve as administrative units.

Hence there is no "sovereignty" in a county. The state is the sovereign and counties possess no powers of functions unless given to them by state statute.

The Legislature has long had the power to consolidate counties. But until 1966, it was virtually impossible to do because the 1980 constitution required a majority vote by the counties affected.

A 1966 amendment gave the Legislature by three-fourths vote the right to consolidate counties without consent of the counties affected. It must be quickly pointed out that no attempt to implement the amendment has been made since it was adopted.

One bold attempt to address the issue of cutting down on the number of counties was made back in 1932 in the noted Brookings Institution study of state and county governmental reorganization backed by Gov. Mike Conner.

In its recommendations for county government reorganization, the Brookings study proposed creation of a Local Government Commission which would prepare a plan of county consolidation for the Legislature. The study even proposed specific counties that should be combined as a starter to county consolidation. They included: Issaquena and Sharkey; Carroll and Montgomery; Hinds, Madison and Rankin; Hancock, Harrison and Jackson; Forrest, Lamar and Perry; Pearl River and Stone; George and Greene;

Covington, Jones and Wayne; Jasper and Smith; Clarke, Kemper and Lauderdale; Alcorn, Prentiss, Tiptah and Tishomingo; Benton and Marshall.

Suffice it to say that the Local Government Commission was never created, and no counties were consolidated as a result of the Brookings report.

Two years ago, a study group of technicians in state government convened at the request of state Rep. Sonny Merideth of Greenville, then the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, took a look at alternatives in traditional ways of financing state and local governments.

The report of the study group was never widely circulated, but it contained some fascinating, advanced ideas on revising state-local administrative relationships based on the premise that certain state responsibilities were handed over to local governments.

It raised the question that most counties in Mississippi are too small and lack the capacity to manage any present state program. The average population of the state's 82 counties is 30,739 as compared with a median county population of 58,118 in the other 49 states.

On the basis of the national median county population, Mississippi should have 43 counties rather than 82.

The Merideth study group submitted the idea that the state could create 20 "administrative districts" superimposed over existing counties to manage services which formerly were state-level programs.

Such administrative districts, it said, should contain about 125,000 people and average a little less than 2,400 square miles. A typical administrative district proposed by the study group report would include Lee, Union, Pontotoc and Itawamba counties.

The districts, according to the plan, would be nearly equal in population, have similar capacity for generating sales and property taxes per capita, and have a population center near the district geographic center.

Is the administrative district idea the wave of the future in Mississippi?

Probably not. Who could get used to saying "I am proud to be a resident of state Administrative District Number 10" instead of a Choctaw county, or a Tishomingo county or a Smith county...?

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial

From Mississippi Economic Council

The Mississippi Economic Council reported nearly two years ago that "...when it comes to economic development for Mississippi's Gulf Coast, a cooperative effort is the best way for the whole region to progress together."

This recommendation was implemented when five Harrison County chambers of commerce voted to unite in their efforts to attract industry and tourism to the region.

The five chambers, which were often in direct competition with one another, are now able to present a united front to those interested in what the Gulf Coast has to offer. However, each chamber—Biloxi, Gulfport, Long Beach, Pass Christian and Orange Grove—will retain the right to go solo on issues affecting only that community. The chambers, or "area councils" as they will be called, will have "total authority as far as local issues and projects," according to Walter Williams, who chaired the group that developed the consolidation plan.

The vote, comes at a time when efforts to attract tourism and industry are not yielding anticipated results, while at the same time competition among coastal states continues to grow more intense.

The diversity of the Coast remains apparent, but the task of economic development will become more earnest with the combined strengths of those Harrison County chambers who have set aside any differences for the benefit of the whole region. The future looks brighter for the Gulf Coast because what is good for one community is good for the whole region—and for that matter, the whole state.

JUST PASSING THROUGH—Paul Francis Peter Handy, a former Barnum and Bailey Circus clown who performed under the name Sad Sack for 25 years, stops in Waveland on his way to his home in the Superstition Mountains of Arizona. Handy walked through all 48 states in the continental U.S. from 1982 to 1986 after starting in Gloversville, N.Y. He said he was prompted to do so in 1962 when he became close to a hospitalized child in his hometown, San Diego, Calif., and promised her that after she died he would walk to raise money for children like her. After completing his walk, he placed a plaque on her grave. Handy said his walk was entered into the Guinness Book of World Records and dares anyone to beat him. He said he walks now because "I need the exercise, it keeps my blood circulation." Asked where his next destination is, Handy replied, "I'm going home. I need to sit down." ## Diamondhead Community Association sets annual meeting

BY DENA BISNETTE
Diamondhead Community Association will conduct its annual general membership meeting at 6:30 p.m. May 5 at Diamondhead Country Club.

According to Community Association President Elmer Tapper, the meeting will feature dinner and a forum for candidates running in the upcoming Diamondhead Property Owners' Association election.

Dinner reservations may be obtained by calling the country club.

Tapper said the candidates' forum should be of particular interest to community association members and potential members because the property owners' association board of directors acts as Diamond-head's governing board.

The community association was originally set up as an advisory board to the property owners' association board, but the community association is also involved in charitable projects and issues like the "Stop the Dump" movement, which is opposing the construction of waste disposal site in the nearby Dubisson Community.

The election is June 18 and the ballots are expected to be mailed next week, added Tapper, who is also a candidate for the property owner's association board.

Tickets for dinner and show only are $50. Dinner seating is limited. For reservations call Ann Clark at 255-2769.

Reporter's 1987 work cited

Brenda Heathcock-Hughes, former Sea Coast Echo reporter-photographer, brought home 10 award certificates from the Mississippi Press Women Association annual awards banquet in Jackson Friday.

She received four first place, five second place and one third place award in the MPW 1988 Communications Contest.

In the news reporting category, Heathcock-Hughes received a first place award for a report on a visit to Bay Senior High by inmates from Mississippi State Penitentiary in Parchman.

Also in this division, she received a second place award for a news story on the impact of Pope John Paul II's visit in New Orleans which was witnessed by many Hancock County residents.

Heathcock-Hughes was awarded first and third place certificates in the feature writing category of the communications contest.

The first place winning entry was an article on the life and art of Neal Myers of Pass Christian, and the third place award was for a story on Waveland youth Michael Prendergast, who overcame serious premature birth problems and is now an eight-year-old student at Waveland Elementary School.

In the special articles category, she received a second place award for an entry of three articles including a feature on State Trooper Houston J. Dorr II of Kiln, who participated in police benefit boxing matches; and two accounts of Hancock North Central varsity football games.

Heathcock-Hughes won a second place award in the personality profile division for a feature on Diamondhead artist Coella Jeannine Longanecker.

She also received a second place award for her contributions to a special section on the Hancock County Justice Facility.

In the photography division, she won a second place award for a photo of a drowning victim at a residence on South Beach Boulevard.

The four first place winning entries were forwarded in the national MPW Communications Contest.

Adams qualifies for Ward Three special election

Francis "Billy" Admas has announced his candidacy for Waveland Ward Three alderman.

FRANCIS ADAMS

Adams is a member of St. Clare Parish, Waveland Civic Association, Knights of Columbus Pere Le Duc Council 1622 and Alhambra Oran Caravan No. 67 of Biloxi.

He is also a member of Waveland Elementary School Parent-Teachers Organization and has served as its treasurer for the past two years.

Adams is a self-employed mechanic who also does yard work.

The candidate is married to Susan Michel Adams and they have two children, Michael Adams, 8, and Michelle Adams, 2.

"I would appreciate your support in this election," said Adams, who added that he has several goals he would like to accomplish in Ward Three including drainage improvements.

An accident involving five vehicles, and sixteen people has occurred on highway 603. Seven of those involved sustained injuries.

There were no fatalities in the collision, which took place about 10:30 Saturday morning in Kiln.

According to Mississippi Highway Patrolman Houston Dorr, who was present at the scene, a pickup heading north, driven by Charlotte C. Ladner, 35, of Route 1, Pass Christian, apparently crossed the centerline striking head-on a pickup driven by Brenda S.

Whitfield, 33, of Route 3, Picayune. Ladner's vehicle then collided with a south-bound automobile driven by Penny Foy, 40, of Kiln, causing it to go into the ditch. Ladner's vehicle then came to rest in the center of the road.

The pickup driven by Whitfield, Dorr explained, then struck a car driven by Armon G. "Greg" Cuevas, 43, of Route 2, Poplarville, knocking it off the highway.

A truck travelling north, behind Ladner, driven by Nolan M. Windham, 59, of Route 1, Kiln was damaged by debris from the original crash, between Ladner and Whitfield.

Those injured in the accident were transported by Mobile Medic to Hancock Medical Center where they received treatment in the emergency room.

Receiving treatment for minor contusions and abrasions and released were: Pam Seals, 34; Jason Whitfield, 12; James Duley, 13, all passengers of the vehicle driven by Brenda S. Whitfield.

Also present at the scene were George Burleson and Nathan "Corky" Hoda of Hancock Sheriff's Department, and Jeff Wilson with Gulf Coast Security.

Long Beach physician on probation

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

A Long Beach physician was sentenced to five years of probation in Biloxi Federal Court on Tuesday for failure to file a 1981 Federal Income Tax return.

U.S. Judge Walter Gex III, also sentenced Dr. Donald R. Rayner to perform 200 hours of community service as a condition of his probation, according to Liz Evans, Internal Revenue Service public affairs officer for the Jackson IRS district. The Long Beach doctor is also to pay the back taxes for 1981.

In February, 1988, Dr. Rayner pled guilty to the charge of failure to file a 1981 Federal Income Tax return. According to information filed, he had a gross income of $125,549 for the year of 1981.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Frank Violanti handled the case for the U.S. Attorney's office. The case was developed by special agents of the criminal investigation division of the IRS.

Representative Wayne Dowdy, who serves as chairman of a Veterans Affairs Subcommittee in Congress, is working to change a provision of current law that he said hurts military retirees.

The issue involves those who pursued a military career and also qualify for VA disability compensation for injuries or illnesses.

"those" who entered other professions—banking, law, medicine, or any field of their choice—are entitled to receive VA disability benefits along with their full retirement checks. Yet those who choose to make a career of military service are denied that same privilege."

The Achievement Medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorious service, acts of courage, or other accomplishments.

Ashley is a multichannel communications system operator with the 22nd Signal Brigade.

Dowdy said that military retirees "are being singled out for a financial penalty which is not imposed on any other group of Americans." The Fourth District Congressman noted that Dowdy's testimony in support of the military retirement legislation was part of a recent hearing on the issue before the Veterans Affairs Subcommittee on Compensation, Pension and Insurance.

BAYS Under 14 Boys win district

In one of the most exciting soccer games ever played in district competition, BAYS Excalibur defeated BAYS Blast in a sudden death shoot-out to win the U-14 District Championship.

The scene of the battle was at Milner Stadium in Gulfport where the MYSA District 4 playoffs were being held from Apr. 16 through May 1.

Teams from across the coast in all age groups competed in the double-elimination tournament to determine the first and second place team to advance to the State competition.

This year, the State competition will be held May 14 and 15 in Jackson.

Excalibur advanced to the final championship play by defeating Ocean Springs and Gulfport teams. The championship game was played on a windy and cloudy day and after seventy minutes of hard-fought regulation play, the game was scoreless.

The game went into 20 minutes of over-time play and during the first over-time period, Excalibur scored the first goal of the game.

With only seconds to go in the final over-time period, Blast scored on a penalty kick to tie the game at 1-1. With over-time play ended, the game was forced into a shoot-out to determine the winner.

Five shooters from each team were chosen to shoot one-on-one penalty kicks against each team's goalkeeper.

At the end of the shoot-out, both teams had scored the same number of goals.

The game was still tied. All that remained to break the tie was now a sudden-death shoot-out, in which a one-on-one by round competition was held.

Lady Raiders successfully defend championship

The Coast Episcopal Lady Raiders took the Conference Championship for the second year in a row. The final score after a hard defensive struggle against Reserve at LaPlace, La. was 27-21.

The high scorer at the game was Katherine Smith with a total of 20 points. She led the Raiders in rebounds and blocked shots. Freshman Melissa Catron scored three points during the conference game and kept a steady defensive pace, assuring the Raiders the title. Senior Sharon Orlin contributed two points as the team's power forward. Rounding out the scoring was freshman Candace Payne who stole the ball from a Reserve player and scored two points at a crucial moment.

Senior Kristen Catron is the second highest rebounder for the Lady Raiders this season.

Katherine Smith rounded her season with an average of 12 points, a total of eight blocked shots and 10 rebounds per game.

The Lady Raiders will be losing five seniors this year and Coach Calvin Smith said the team's youth and quickness will allow them to hold their own during the 1988-89 season.

Raiders win conference

The Coast Episcopal High School Raiders closed their basketball season by winning the Gulf States Conference Tournament with victories over Word of Life Academy of New Orleans, 50-33.

The Raiders finished 10-2 in conference play and 10-11 overall.

Guards senior Chris Riggs and sophomore Billy Guice provided 24 and 20 points, respectively, while forward senior Todd Purcell added another 21 in the tournament.

The Raiders fell behind 11-2 early in the first quarter against Word of Life but tenacious defense and a deliberate, patient offense enabled them to end the first half tied.

Guard Billy Guice erupted with all 10 of his points in the second half as the Raider fast break came alive and the contest was no longer in doubt.

Life Academy of New Orleans had given the Raiders their only conference losses but proved no match as they played for the conference championship in the final game.

Raider forward Todd Purcell controlled both halves the second half as the Raiders erupted to break the half-time tie.

Eighth grader Brandon Smith, playing with 4 fouls scored all 7 of his points during the fourth quarter to put the game out of reach. Raider forwards Sterling Thibodeaux and Rusty Roper contributed key defensive rebounds late in the third quarter creating easy fast break points for the Raiders.

Sophomores Hutson Lambert and Scott Covode provided excellent performances coming in off the bench and making victory a total team effort.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1988-1C

Power 108 to broadcast from HNC Carnival

Hancock North Central will host its Student Council Spring Carnival Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Radio Station Power 108 will be on hand to air the fun and excitement," according to Terry Randolph, superintendent.

Games, volleyball tournaments, dunking booth, space walk and good food await the carnival visitors, he noted.

The carnival is held to benefit the Rebecca Kennedy Scholarship Fund which supports a scholarship given to one senior each year.

Pre-registration scheduled at elementary schools

The Superintendent of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School district, Dr. Roger Oge, announced that Waveland and North Bay Elementary Schools will hold pre-registration for the 1988-89 school term on Monday, May 9, in each school library between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Students who reside within the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District and plan to enter grades K-4 next fall are eligible to pre-register.

A certified copy of the child's Birth Certificate and a Certificate of Compliance from the Health Department or family physician is requested at pre-registration and will be required before the child may attend classes.

Mississippi law mandates that children who are to enter Kindergarten must attain the age of five (5) on or before Sept. 1. Those who are to enter 1st Grade must attain the age of six (6) on or before Sept. 1.

Hearing and vision screening tests will be administered free of charge to each child who pre-registers as a service to the parent and the child.

Delta State's Coast alums set annual meet

CLEVELAND—The Gulf Coast Chapter of the Delta State University Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 19, at Aunt Jenny's Catfish Restaurant at 1217 Washington Avenue in Ocean Springs.

According to Debra Bertucci, chapter president, the program for the evening will consist of reports from university representatives on academic and athletic activities under way at Delta State.

All former students and their spouses, plus other friends of Delta State are invited to attend, Bertucci said.

Counties in the Gulf Coast Chapter include Hancock, Harrison and Jackson.

All parents are urged to pre-register their eligible children. Any questions concerning pre-registration should be directed to Mr. James Baldree, Principal of Waveland Elementary at 467-6630 and Mr. Roger James, Principal of North Bay Elementary at 467-4757.

STUDENT HONORED—Cicely Livingston, center, accepts the Hancock County Exchange Club's Student of the Month plaque from Craig Foster, left, and a savings bond from Jeanne Deen, right, account officer for Gulf National Bank. The Hancock North Central senior is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Livingston of Leetown Community. Her selection was made by North Central's administration and teachers. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

TEACHER OF THE MONTH—Elizabeth Randle, right, accepts the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club's Teacher of the Month award from Mike Witte, education chairman. A teacher at North Bay Elementary, Randle was selected for her outstanding teaching abilities by school system peers. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

PRC foundation to recognize faculty/staff

The Pearl River College Development Foundation will present six faculty and staff "Award for Excellence" this spring.

"We wanted to recognize our outstanding faculty and staff members and administrators," said Donna Wilson, executive director of the Development Foundation.

"The Development Foundation board recognizes that Pearl River Community College's tradition of quality education is due to its dedicated, professional personnel," said Wilson. "This is a way to show our appreciation."

The Foundation Board has appropriated $1,200 for six recognition awards of $200 each.

The "Awards for Excellence" will include selections for academic, vocational "Instructor of the Year" and Support Staff and Service/Trade Staff "Member of the Year" and Administration (non-teaching) "Professional of the Year."

All nominees must be full-time employees for at least three years. A screening committee will evaluate each nominee and recommend no more than two in each award area to the selection committee.

TEEN TALK

Teens Should Know Facts About AIDS

By Dr. Ann F. Jarratt
Youth Development Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

"How many people in Mississippi have AIDS?"
Data reported by the Mississippi State Department of Health in its publication "HIV Infection and AIDS" shows 109 cases (state residents only) as of Dec. 8, 1987. The publication also points out that for every one diagnosed AIDS case another 50 to 100 cases of HIV infection exist in a population. Using that estimate, public health officials estimate that between 5,000 and 10,000 Mississippians are now infected with HIV.

What's important for you as a teen to know about AIDS? AIDS is fatal. No cure exists for AIDS. There is no vaccine to prevent AIDS. AIDS is transmitted in three ways: sexual activity, blood-to-blood, and mother-to-fetus/infant.

To avoid AIDS, avoid high-risk behaviors such as casual sex and sharing drug needles. The only totally safe sexual and drug-use behavior for teens is abstinence.

"I don't like the way I look. My girl friends say I'm pretty, but they just say it because they're my friends. Not too many boys think I'm pretty—the only ones that do are the ones I'm not interested in. Help me to feel good about myself."

I don't know you, so I have no idea what you look like. What I do know is this—you are absolutely worthwhile just exactly as you are.

Have you ever heard the cliché, "Beauty is only skin deep"? What's inside you is what really makes the difference. Do you know people who have such warm, caring, friendly personalities that you never

Pass High alumni to honor graduates

The Pass Christian High School Alumni Association is hosting its annual banquet for all graduates from 1909 to 1989.

All graduates on Pass High are invited to attend.

The banquet will begin Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the VFW Hall in Pass Christian.

The cost is $10 per person which will cover the meal, membership dues and the dance.

For reservations, contact Shirley Wattman, P.O. Box 530, Pass Christian, MS 39574 or call Mary (Snook) Russell at 452-4224 or Shirley Wattman at 452-2404.

The classes of 1928, 1938 and 1963 will be especially honored, celebrating their 60th, 50th and 25th anniversaries, respectively.

think about what they look like? Who would you rather spend time with—a gorgeous body who's a jerk or someone with a pleasing personality?

The main thing I want to address is your last request, "Help me to feel good about myself. You're exactly right—what really matters is how you feel about yourself and what you value. The very body at school stood in line every morning to tell you how beautiful you are, it wouldn't change your opinion if you truly believed that you were unattractive."

Make the best of your strong points. You have nice hair. You are a good dancer. You are attractive. Select make-up and clothes that are becoming to your body type and coloring. Exercise and keep fit. Eat well balanced meals and get plenty of rest. All of this affects the way you look. Smile a lot. It increases your face value.

Don't compare yourself with anyone else. You are unique. You can always find someone more attractive than you and someone less attractive. Use your potential to its best advantage. Appreciate the beauty in others.

"My problem is with my parents. They always seem to think that they're never wrong. Everything I want to do seems wrong to them. What should I do?"

You'd like to be right sometimes. Right? It makes you feel powerless when you always seem to be wrong. Not fun!

The strange thing about this situation with parents and kids is that many parents also wish their kids thought parents were right sometimes.

The truth is that neither parents or kids are right or wrong all of the time. I suggest that family rules could be more effective if the family negotiates them together.

If you have input into decisions that affect you, you will be more likely to cooperate and help make the system work. That also puts you and your parents in a cooperative relationship rather than a combative one. A word of warning—a cooperation relationship requires some giving and taking and compromise on both sides.

If you have any question concerning your teenage years, contact Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H Youth Development Specialist, P.O. Box 5446, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Society plans summer camp for pediatric cancer patients

The American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division, Inc., will conduct its 5th Annual Camp Rainbow during August 1988.

This special camp for pediatric cancer patients was first conducted in 1984 on the Strong River in Pinola, Mississippi. Many of these children had never had the opportunity to enjoy the traditional fun of summer camp as most camps do not accept pediatric cancer patients for fear of not being prepared to meet their special needs.

Thirty-eight campers attended this first camp, along with a contingent of volunteers, including medical staff, who saw that there was no disruption of chemotherapy or other treatment necessary for the campers.

The American Cancer Society's objective is to provide a fun-filled three day camping experience in a loving and caring environment which affords each camper the opportunity to share the good times and camaraderie of camp life with fellow campers. Camp Rainbow also allows the family a well-deserved rest knowing that their children are in the capable and trusted hands of qualified pediatric doctors and nurses as well as trained camp counselors.

Camp Rainbow offers traditional camp activities such as swimming, tennis, hayrides, horseback riding and arts and crafts. Each year specialized activities have been introduced such as canoeing, soccer, clowning, hot air balloon rides and even Scottish folk dancing taught by the International Camp staff. Plans are under way to expand these activities to make the 1988 Camp Rainbow the most successful year yet.

Camp Rainbow is funded by contributions made to the Mississippi Division of the American Cancer Society on a fee of charge to all participants. Since 1984, over 100 campers have attended Camp Rainbow and the most recent camp has been more than doubled in size. This year, with the addition of a number of new counselors and medical staff, we are expecting to have more than 100 campers.

Interested parents should contact Camp Rainbow, if you have a child who has been diagnosed with cancer and are interested in supporting Camp Rainbow, please call the American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division, Inc., at 452-7222 for (41) 224-224.

For Determined Teens

Thorough job search is key to employment

By Eva Ann Dorris
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Teenagers are entering America's work force in record numbers, and during the next several weeks many more will be in search of summer jobs. For the determined teen, the search should pay off.

In 1987, more than 6.6 million teens were employed in part-time and full-time jobs. That figure represents 45.5 percent of the nation's population between ages 16 and 19.

According to the National Bureau of Labor Statistics, industries in wholesale and retail trade are the primary employers of teens. Service industries are the second largest employers.

For most determined teens, some type of summer or year-round employment can be found, but it will probably take more than one or two phone calls to land the ideal job.

Everyone can relate to hearing "sorry, no jobs," and it is important not to get discouraged early in the job hunting process, said Dr. Ann Jarratt, a youth development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Teens should plan in advance to take some 'nos' in stride and keep trying," she said. "Don't take job rejection personally."

Some common places of summer employment include city park and recreation commissions, amusement parks, fast food restaurants, department stores, landscaping and lawn-care businesses and summer child-care programs. These type of jobs are usually advertised in local newspapers.

In addition, many federal and state agencies provide summer employment for economically-disadvantaged youth. Youth that might fall into this category should contact their local state employment office or community service organization in charge of coordinating summer youth employment.

"If jobs aren't available from the common places, then it may be time to talk to friends, parents and parents' friends about job prospects," Jarratt said. "The grapevine seems to work well in this type of situation."

When a job opening is located and an interview secured, Jarratt recommends being prepared and confident.

"Be on time, courteous, pleasant, well-groomed and appropriately dressed," she said. "And go alone, never take a friend with you to an interview."

Opportunities also exist for summer self-employment for teens.

"Teens need to make a list of things people need done during the summer months and advertise to do those things," Jarratt said.

Examples of self-employment ventures include housesitting, plantsitting, child care, lawn and garden care and car washing.

If the summer begins and a determined teen still hasn't found a job, volunteering is another option.

There is a lot to be said for volunteering, especially in fields of interest," Jarratt said. "Someone interested in medicine could volunteer at the hospital and gain much needed experience instead of pay."

For the few teens that do get left out of the summer job circle, there is always next summer. That leaves a full year to make plans and start looking.

Plans could include becoming more employable by taking first aid or lifesaving courses, required before employment at many parks or learning specific job skills such as typing or bookkeeping through school courses.

Your Pet's Health

Older Cats, Dogs Need Special Care

By Clyde E. Taylor
Leader, Veterinary Medicine
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service
And
Associate Professor
College of Veterinary Medicine
Mississippi State University

As cats and dogs live longer lives, the care and treatment of older animals becomes increasingly important. Maintaining good health in older pets is a special area of veterinary medicine known as geriatric medicine.

All tissues, organs and systems in the body are affected by the aging process. There is a loss of organ reserve and a decrease in metabolic rate, volume of cell water, bone mineral and neurons in the brain.

There is a tendency for increased dental disease, a loss of muscle mass and tone, blood vessel fibrosis and constipation due to loss of bowel tone. The senses are dulled (eyes, ears and nose) and output of the heart is decreased. Response to disease by the body's immune system is lowered.

Pet owners can help their aging animals by remembering and doing a few simple things:

- Keep weight down by exercising the pet regularly and not overfeeding. Overweight cats and dogs have too high an intake of calories.
- Feed three or four times daily, instead of one large meal. The older pet's digestive system can't handle food as well as younger animals.
- Groom pets daily. Skin and haircoat changes result in less elastic skin and duller, drier, more brittle hair coats.
- Supplement the pet's diet with additives that help to reduce aging deficiencies. Examples are brewers yeast, unsaturated fatty acids (vegetable oil), vitamins B1, B12, C and E.
- Provide dental care once or twice each year by a veterinarian and weekly at home.
- Arrange for an annual physical examination by a veterinarian.
- Provide companionship.

Diet is especially important in caring for the older pet. A number of commercial pet food companies market complete diets for older dogs and cats. These are of definite value in meeting nutritional needs of the aging animal and may be purchased from your veterinarian with complete feeding instructions. Geriatric vitamin/mineral supplements are also available commercially as an aid in maintaining good health when pets get older.

JUNIOR COLLEGES COMPETE—Pearl River Community College competed during the second annual Junior College Computer Programming Contest Apr. 9 at the University of Southern Mississippi. Team members included, from left, Gene Pharr of Picayune, Tim Jones of Bay St. Louis and Sonny Mardis of Picayune. Sponsored by the USM Department of Computer Science and Statistics, the contest offered competition in a general category as well as computer languages such as Basic, Fortran and Cobol. Winning team members, judged on their ability to correctly solve the most number of problems in the shortest amount of time, were awarded scholarships to attend USM. The team was declared the second place winner in the general contest, solving six of the eight problems. Each team member received a $500 scholarship to USM. Coach for the team was Steve Howard.

Spring enrollment, Test scores are up

Spring semester enrollment is up at Mississippi State University and American College Test college entrance test scores of freshmen are again the highest among the state universities.

Spring on-campus enrollment at Mississippi State is 10,793, which is up by 290 students—2.8 percent—from spring 1987. Fall semester enrollment, which is typically higher, was 11,710, and represented a 2 percent increase from the previous fall.

Fall 1987 enrollment figures released by the Board of Trustees, Institutions of Higher Learning show that the average composite ACT score of entering MSU freshmen is again the state's highest, as it has been for seven of the past eight years.

MSU freshmen reported an average composite ACT score of 21.92 this fall. The average for the eight universities was 18.28. The average for all Mississippi students taking the test was 16.3. The national average score was 18.4.

Mississippi State also enrolled in the fall term 55 percent of the 825 students in state universities who scored 27 or higher on the ACT or the equivalent on the SAT admissions exam. The next largest proportion of the top students attending a single institution is 24 percent.

Among MSU freshmen in 1987, the modal score—the single most frequently recorded ACT score—was 27, also the state's highest. The next highest modal score among the eight state universities was 23.

Mississippi State enrolled 25.5 percent of all freshmen in all eight state universities in the fall. The 1987 freshman class at MSU was the largest in university history, and the largest among state institutions, with 1,903 students enrolling for the first time in the summer or fall.

The eight state universities enrolled 7,017 first-time freshmen in the fall, with 1,767 of that number attending Mississippi State. The four largest institutions enrolled 78.5 percent of the new freshmen. The average high school grade point average of the new fall freshmen at MSU was 3.06.

Spring on-campus enrollment, by college and school, includes 2,012 students in business and industry, 2,001 in arts and sciences, 1,776 in engineering, 1,615 in the Graduate School, 1,224 in education, 881 in agriculture and home economics, 652 in accountancy, 269 in architecture, 155 in veterinary medicine, 145 in forestry, and 63 unclassified.

This spring, 6,329 students are male and 4,464 are female.

Superdome to house first used car show

Saturday April 30 at 10 a.m. the Louisiana Superdome will be transformed into the "World's Largest Indoor Used Car Lot," according to Bob Del Giorno, show producer.

"It's never been done before, and that suites me just fine," Del Giorno said.

"Just the idea of people being able to sell the family car or truck inside the air-conditioned Superdome, and creating a marketplace is absolutely fascinating."

"This should be far more effective than people using shopping mall parking lots to sell vehicles on weekends." The Louisiana Superdome is charging individuals $20 to display and sell their vehicles.

News On Wheels, the show sponsor, is offering its individual customers a $5 discount.

Local merchants will be on hand offering the general public discount auto insurance, title transfer, auto accessories, financing, oil changes, maintenance and repairs.

Sponsored by News On Wheels, New Orleans-used car publication, show is sanctioned by Louisiana Motor Vehicle Commission.

Show hours will be from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Admission is $3 and children under 12 are admitted free.

The first 3,000 people through the doors will receive a pair of tickets to the UNO-Arkansas State doubleheader on Sunday May 1.

Anyone wishing further information on either selling a vehicle or attending the show should call Show Promotions at (504) 466-0921 or News On Wheels (504) 524-3785.

State jobless rate drops

JACKSON—The March jobless rate for Mississippi fell to 8.6 percent, according to the Mississippi Employment Security Commission. This rate was one and two tenths percentage points below one month ago when the rate stood at 9.8 percent.

This was 3.4 percentage points below the 12.0 percent reported March 1987. These improvements were caused by seasonal changes in construction, agriculture and related services.

Place-of residence employment for March stood at 1,059,400 in a labor force of 1,149,500. There were 4,700 more people employed in March than last month and 42,100 more than March 1987.

Manufacturing establishments provided 233,300 jobs, up 200 from the 233,100 reported in February.

Nonmanufacturing businesses provided 647,100 jobs in improvement with most dramatic being the marked improvement in manufacturing over the last eight month.

There were 111,649 claims filed in March 1988, as compared to 113,448 during February and 137,404 one year ago.

Sacred Heart Brothers elect provincial council

The Brothers of the Sacred Heart elected Brother Bernard Covillion to a three-year term as provincial of the New Orleans Province effective Aug. 15 to replace Brother Xavier Werneth who has held the position since 1982.

Brother Bernard, currently director of novices for the three American provinces of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, has been active in retreat work throughout the institute.

He was selected to represent the New Orleans Province at the General Chapter in Rome in 1976, in 1982, and will again travel there for 1988 meetings.

Brother Bernard is the son of Therese Covillion of Baton Rouge, La. and the late-Claude Covillion. He took first vows in 1965 before attending Spring Hill College in Alabama where he graduated summa cum laude with an AB degree.

From Florida State University he obtained an MA in English education, and from Loyola of New Orleans, a master's in pastoral studies.

New Orleans has been the scene of most of Brother Bernard's endeavors since 1968 when he began his teaching career at St. Aloysius in the final year of its existence.

He served as chairman of the English department at the newly-consolidated Brother Martin High School in 1969. Brother Bernard has also seen service as director of several local communities of the Brothers.

Brother Bernard's work in giving retreats and renewal sessions has taken him to Rhode Island in the New England province, and as far away as England, Zambia, and Australia.

To assist the new provincial, four Brothers of the Sacred Heart in the New Orleans province were recently elected to the Council. They are Brothers Xavier Werneth, Ivy LeBlanc, Matthias Amos, and Lee Barker.

On Aug. 15 they will assume office with the new provincial. Brother Xavier, a native Mobilian, is culminating his second three-year term as provincial in the New Orleans Province. Son of Maurine Werneth and the late Francis Xavier Werneth, he professed first vows as a Brother of the Sacred Heart in 1962.

He made his studies at Belvidere, New Jersey, and at Spring Hill, Ala., graduating summa cum laude from Spring Hill with an AB degree.

In 1970 he obtained an MA degree from LSU.

His teaching assignments took him from Catholic High in Baton Rouge to E.D. White in Thibodaux.

In both places he served as director; in 1976 he was named principal of E.D. White. Before being elected provincial in 1982, he was a member of the provincial council for three years.

He was elected to represent the province six years ago when the Institute held its meetings in Rome.

Recently, Brother Xavier has been quite active in the Congregation of Major Superiors of Men, serving as secretary-treasurer of the National Officers, as an at-large member of the National Board, and as a member of the Executive Committee of the National Board.

Upon leaving office in August, he will serve as director of the Brothers' community at St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis.

A native of Baton Rouge, Brother Ivy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LeBlanc Sr. After making first vows in 1969, Brother's first assignment was to St. Stanislaus.

Next, he was prefect in Mobile at the Boys' Home and taught at McGill High School there.

He returned to Stanislaus briefly as prefect before his assignment to Brother Martin High School in 1972. There he was teacher, dean of students, and vice-principal prior to his being named principal in 1980.

Brother Ivy has a degree in accounting from LSU, a master's in administration from Tulane, and a master's in pastoral studies from Loyola University in New Orleans.

Since 1982, he has been a member of the Provincial Council and will this summer represent the Brothers of the New Orleans province in Rome at their General Chapter.

Brother Matthias was born in Mobile. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amos. He took first vows in 1952.

For 13 years he was a missionary, teaching in various schools in Uganda, East Africa, and serving as director, principal and master of novices.

His other teaching assignments have been in the Bronx, New Orleans, Houma—where he was principal and director, and McGill where he currently is teacher and director.

Brother Matthias holds a BS degree from Spring Hill College and a master's in education from Nichol's State.

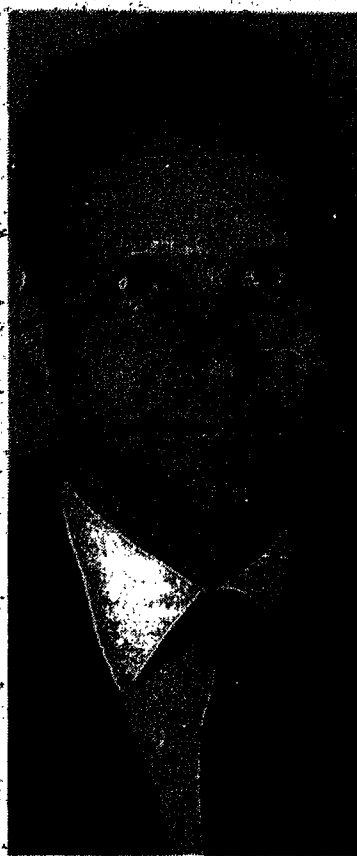

As postnovitiate director for the New Orleans Province since 1986, he has assisted in the formation of Brothers with temporary vows.

Brother Lee, a native of Thibodaux, has held the following positions: provincial of the New Orleans province, director/principal of St. Aloysius in New Orleans, master of novices at Daphne, and principal at St. Stanislaus.

He pronounced first vows in 1947. Early on, he taught in the Bronx, in Bay St. Louis, and at Alexandria, serving as athletic director, Key Club moderator, and prefect.

Brother holds degrees from Spring Hill and Loyola. Since 1964 he has been a member of the Provincial Council. In 1982 he was named vocation director.

Weekly State Crop Report Covering Week of Apr. 16-22

Mississippi landowners will have to push to sell their pine pulpwood this spring because of oversupply at the mills and falling demand in the market.

Pine pulpwood prices are down because of oversupply, and suppliers for the mills are being more selective in the wood

"Prospects will not be good for demand until the mills begin to build winter inventories," Daniels said.

The current market price for pine pulpwood is between $6 and $20 per cord.

Pulpwood oversupplies keep sellers guessing

they buy. Prospects for selling pulpwood won't get better until late summer when mills begin to buy for winter inventories.

"Good timber will still bring good selling opportunities and good prices," said Bob Daniels, forest products utilization specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "The mills have high wood inventories now, and this is affecting landowners at the supply end."

Oversupplies of pine pulpwood were caused by good logging weather this winter. The forests stayed dry and loggers harvested pine at a constant rate.

"We didn't see the normal winter slowdown in harvesting this year that we see in other years," Daniels said. "There was little lag in cutting, so inventories built up at the mills."

Southern pine beetle activities and good harvesting weather this summer may aggravate oversupply. Some pines in north Mississippi have beetle infestations and are cut for market.

in many areas of the state and cool soil temperatures have kept some farmers from planting cotton.

Fire ants, ticks and other insects are building up in some counties. "Fire ant mounds are appearing almost everywhere," said Joe Goforth, Calhoun County agent.

"Mississippi Roads" travels to Summit, Meridian and Pickens

"Mississippi Roads" visits a newspaper columnist in Summit, a soup kitchen in Meridian and a former music teacher and her students in Pickens on Tuesday, May 3, at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

The first segment this week honors Mother's Day with a profile of Mamie Willoughby of Summit, who, under the pseudonym "Rose Budd Stevens" has written a weekly newspaper column for more than 40 years.

Now seen in Jackson's Clarion Ledger/Jackson Daily News, Willoughby's column features her specialties: old recipes, home remedies and folklore. "Her son Ben recalls how she got started and reflects upon everything his mother has taught him."

"Roads" then travels to Meridian and the Love Kitchen, a vital facility that feeds the homeless and transient. Founder and board secretary, retired Judge Billy Neville, tells how the Love Kitchen was founded and how it continues to be supported and staffed.

Manager Gladys Ridgeway explains how the food is obtained and discusses the number of meals that have been served since love Kitchen opened in 1983. Clients such as Robert Grace relate how they have been helped by the volunteers and cooks at Love Kitchen, and viewers meet one of those cooks, Thelma Scott, as she prepares the day's meal.

On the final stop of the evening, "Roads" visits Pickens and a unique reunion of students of retired music teacher Mrs. Melvin Worthy.

Gathering to play the ukelele, an instrument Mrs. Worthy taught to numerous students during her teaching career, are former students Becky Worthy Leverette, Wee-zie Manseu Polk, Hardy Davis Burkhardt, Betty Guess and Nan Whitehead Sykes of Pickens; Mary Jane Sampson, Grace Buchanan and Susan Owen Taylor of Jackson; Phoebe Davis Ashcraft of Madison; Barbara L. Haffey of Ebenezer; and Polly Pepper Adams of Yazoo City.

Viewers are treated to a performance of "Red River Valley," and Mrs. Worthy explains how and why she started teaching

Legislative action needed to preserve Mississippi's world class folklore

By Patti Carr Black
Director
State Historical Museum
Old Capital Restoration
Mississippi Department of Archives and History
Editor's note: The following article is financially assisted by the National Endowment for the Humanities through a grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and do not necessarily represent the views of these organizations.

The 1988 legislature will again have the opportunity of establishing the position of a State Folklorist under the auspices of the Mississippi Arts Commission.

Mississippi, still 52 percent rural, brimming and rich with folklife, needs a fulltime, professionally-trained folklorist to coordinate the promising but scattered efforts at preservation around the state. Not to have one is like failing to assign a coach to the top football team in the nation. Let's put our folk in perspective.

Consider the tremendous impact that Mississippi folk traditions have had on the nation and the world. The two great forms of indigenous American music have had their beginnings here.

The blues is internationally recognized as growing from the soil of the Mississippi Delta.

Mississippi bluesmen have gone on to become internationally known artists.

Howling Wolf, Muddy Waters, Little Milton, B.B. King, and blues itself has fomed the musical undercurrent of most subsequent American music: jazz, rhythm and blues, rock and roll.

Dizzy Gillespie, Mick Jagger, Bob Dylan and other recording stars have cited its influence. George Gershwin even used the blues in many of his concert pieces, notably, Rhapsody in Blue. Blues is a gift that Mississippi has given the world.

We cannot claim the second musical form totally, but it is acknowledged in the Country Music Hall of Fame that "the father of country music" came from Mississippi. Jimmie Rodgers of Meridian, a brakeman for the railroad, grew up hearing Mississippi blues, gospel, and work songs. He put them all together to produce the sweet music that made him a legend and a tremendous influence on country music of America.

Both strains came together in the music of Elvis Presley, whose impact on the nation is still being felt. He grew up in Tupelo, listening to Mississippi Delta blues and Jimmie Rodgers, and from those elements produced a new sound that set American music on its ear. His impact is clear and the origins of his music are clear.

There are other important musical forms in Mississippi: Sacred Harp, old-time fiddling, work songs, folk-dances, and gospel music, both black and white, all have had an impact on American popular music. These forms should be encouraged and perpetuated.

The term "folk culture" refers, of course, to much more than music.

The term is generally accepted to mean those aspects of our expressive culture that are learned orally or by imitation from a member of one's family or community and are passed on through tradition and practice and not through formal schooling. Folk culture includes a wide-range of creative and symbolic forms, such as architecture, art, belief, cookery, crafts, custom, dance, drama, medicine, music, occupational skills, play, ritual, and verbal arts, such as games, sayings, rhymes, and tales.

Mississippi has an incredibly rich vein of creative life in all of these areas, and again, much of it has had national impact. Our verbal folklore traditions have been cited innumerable times as a force that helped create the large number of Mississippi writers.

William Faulkner, Eudora Welty, Willie Morris, and Ellen Douglas have all alluded to "listening to tales" as a source of their art.

Mississippi has an abundant supply of river tales, ghost stories, tales of the Natchez Trace, tall tales of hunting and fishing, legends of all kinds. They should be preserved for future generations.

In folk painting, we have two nationally-recognized artists. Theora Hamblett's work is in the Museum of Modern Art in New York; Ethel Wright Mohamed's work is in the collections of the Smithsonian Institution.

We have exciting and colorful festivals, such as the Blessing of the Fleet and the Choctaw Indian Fair; we have a strong tradition of folk pottery-making; we have prime examples of folk architecture, but all is fast disappearing.

The State of Mississippi, like its neighbors, Louisiana and Arkansas, should have an active program of support for its folk culture.

This is a resource that we cannot afford to ignore. It is not only the source of one of our major contributions to the nation, it is the deepest well-spring of our collective memory.

SCALE MODELING
"Adventures in Scale Modeling," a new 13-part series premiering at 3 p.m., Saturday, Apr. 30, on Mississippi ETV, introduces new hobbyists to the basics of model building while challenging seasoned modelers to new creative heights.

WASHINGTON POST reporter Joel Garreau narrates The Nine Nations of North America: MexAmerica, which looks at the nine distinct "nations" of North America, focusing on the Southwest to be aired Monday, May 2 at 10 p.m. on Mississippi ETV, ch. 19, Biloxi.

Business workshop to be held in Long Beach

Individuals interested in becoming entrepreneurs in south Mississippi will have an opportunity to overview the factors involved in starting a small business at the USM Small Business Development Center's "Thinking About Going Into Business?" workshop.

This workshop, held the first Wednesday evening of every month at various sites introduces prospective entrepreneurs to the potential hazards and joys of owning a small business. Topics include: how to decide if your business idea is feasible; legal considerations of entrepreneurship; formulating a business plan; federal, state, and local requirements; and small business finance.

While not a comprehensive review of the elements of starting a small business, the "Thinking About Going Into Business?" workshop gives prospective entrepreneurs a better sense of direction in their efforts, and will enable them to obtain further assistance should they decide to take the plunge by starting their own business.

The May workshop session will be held at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, May 4 from 7-9 p.m. The workshop is free of charge, but interested persons should call the SBDC at 635-4576 to reserve their place and materials for the program.

Sverdrup Technology names vice president

Sverdrup, Inc.'s president, Dr. Jack Whitfield, announces the election of John G. Nelson to the position of vice-president.

Sverdrup Technology, Inc. is a Tullahoma, Tenn., based company functioning as a major NASA contractor at the National Space Technology Laboratories.

Nelson began his career with Sverdrup's AEDC group after completing his studies at The University of Tennessee and finishing his military service.

Nelson is a registered professional engineer, beginning his career with Sverdrup as an instrumentation engineer and spending 27 years in the Engine Test Facility at Arnold Engineering and Development Center, Arnold AFB, Tenn.

Nelson managed the development and operations of electronic capabilities for seven major simulated altitude propulsion test chambers. He planned and initiated major upgrades for the AEDC central computer facilities, developed the first AEDC rocket test sequencing system and several other computer-based process control systems, and was instrumental in the development of the United States Air Force's first long optical fiber data link.

He transferred to NSTL when the company assumed responsibility for the Technical Support Services Contract and served in the dual role of deputy general manager and director, Data Services Department; he continues as department director as he assumes the responsibilities of chief scientist.

JOHN G. NELSON

Words of Wisdom

To understand is to pardon.

Isn't it strange how the boy who wasn't good enough to marry the daughter can be the father of the smartest grandchild in the world?

Absence of occupation is a mind distressed.

A man is not old until he ceases to dream.

Be able, as days go by, to look yourself straight in the eye.

It is wise to prepare for a rainy day, but enjoy today's sunshine.

Hancock's growth includes increasing interest from business, industrial leaders

Hancock County, one of the fastest growing counties in the State of Mississippi, is also becoming one of the hottest spots for economic development.

This recent recognition from business and industrial leaders can be attributed to a number of things.

First, an aggressive marketing campaign that has been initiated as part of a tri-county effort to attract industry across the nation.

The three counties of Harrison, Jackson and Hancock have together invested $45,000 to advertise in business development periodicals touting the assets we have to offer on the Gulf Coast.

We are also designing a brochure that will depict in detail the special points of interest to which industry would be attracted. Results of this marketing strategy has paid off by numerous inquiries and site visits by some of the companies that you find listed in the Fortune 500.

This group has also successfully completed a prospecting mission to California that has given this area several good leads for major industry locations to the state.

This effort is continuing, and soon the results of these will begin to pay off for the Gulf Coast.

Of course, locally Hancock is holding its own. As I stated, several factors can be attributed to this as being a hot spot. Besides an aggressive marketing campaign, another significant factor is our labor force.

Hancock presently has an unemployment rate of 6.7, lowest of the three coastal counties. This can be attributed to several factors. One is the local business activity that is taking place and another is the hiring of new employees at both the government and private sector levels, and a third is local business/industry expansion.

The diversity of our labor has been important to the various industries presently in Hancock County including the Government Facility (NSTL), high tech spin offs, and existing industry which has expanded in the last year.

New starts such as Thermal Associates, BayTech expansions and others in the last year have provided many opportunities in Hancock County.

The recent announcement of the Advanced Launch System contract awarded to NSTL by the Air Force will create 200-300 new jobs, with an investment of $300 million in plant and equipment.

The NSTL bid for the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor program will create another 400 jobs with investment of $600 million in plant/equipment.

Both projects totaling close to a billion dollars will have significant impact for this county and the future of NSTL.

The Mississippi Tech Transfer Center, opened in June of 1987 has already impacted the high tech industry through a number of business starts through spin off technology.

The Mississippi Contract Procurement Center, a center that assists small businesses get Government contracts, has developed a list of 32 local clients and generated more than $1.6 million in contract awards.

The Legislature presently is considering funding two proposals that could enhance efforts of advance technology.

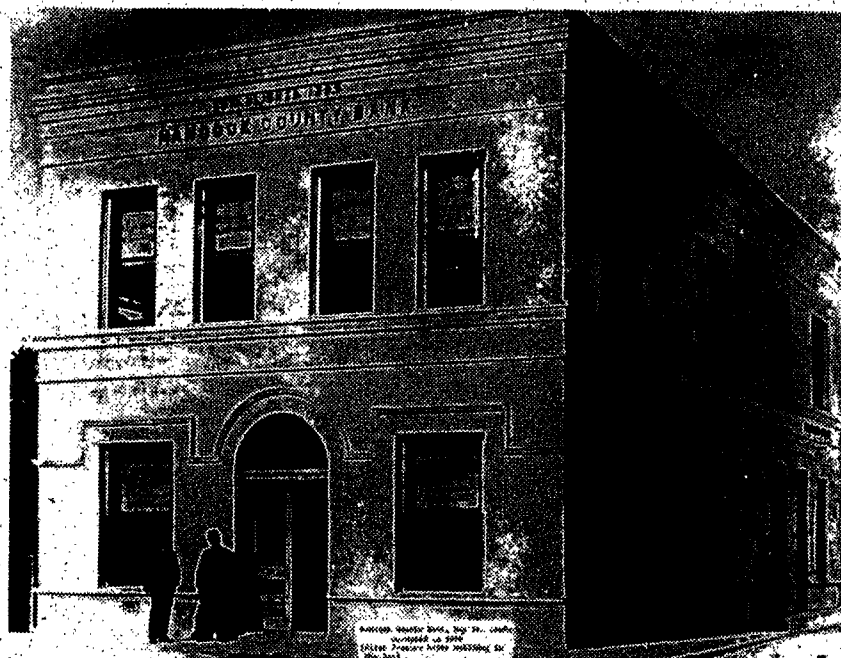

Those two proposals are 1) Aquaculture Center and 2) the Universities Center for the oceanographic, atmospheric, and space sciences. Both of these projects are proposed for location at NSTL.

Hancock County is on the move. This can be credited largely to community support, strong political leadership, both state and local, and positive steps in our educational system.

With these ingredients, Hancock County's future can only get better.

Sincerely,
Buz Olson

First two-story brick building in Bay St. Louis. Occupied by Hancock County Bank in 1900.

We're Hancock Bank.

In 1899 a group of 19 businessmen sat down to organize the first bank on the western Mississippi coast. They had in mind a bank that would be willing to put faith in the individual. One to work side-by-side with local families to help the young Gulf Coast grow.

They founded Hancock Bank.

Since those days, Hancock Bank has grown to become the Coast's largest locally owned bank. But we haven't changed that original philosophy.

From helping early shop keepers purchase their first inventories. To financing multi-million-dollar industrial projects. We're still working to serve the individual family and business interests in our area.

We're Hancock Bank. The only bank you'll ever need.

Borg-Warner has big investment in plants at Port Bienville

It is the purpose of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission to operate Port Bienville Port and Industrial Park, the Stennis International Airport and Industrial Airpark and the Hancock County Marina, and to develop and enhance these areas by attracting quality industries to provide stable employment for the citizens of this county.

One such quality industry is Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc., located at Port Bienville Port and Industrial Park. It began in Hancock County in June, 1980, with an initial construction cost of $30 million. The facility opened its doors for operation in March, 1982. The plant underwent a $30 million expansion in September, 1986, and a new product plant was built in September, 1987, for $60 million.

Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc., produces engineered thermoplastics, which are shipped in bulk rail to other plants within the company for processing. The plastic is used in hundreds of applications, including automobile interior trim, appliances, telecommunication and business machine housings, pipe, sporting goods and recreational equipment such as boats, campers and snowmobiles. Sales of the product are international in scope.

The plant located in Hancock County is the most automated and computerized installation of its kind, and process streams are recycled for a clean environment.

Leo Kowal is the plant manager of Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc., along with Norman Montgomery, assistant plant manager, and Patrick Lewis, administrative manager.

Kowal has been a resident of Hancock County since 1981, when he located here during plant construction. In Hancock County, his activities have included the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, the Mississippi Gulf Coast Economic Development Council, fundraising for Hancock Medical Center, the Port Bienville Industrial Commission, the Mississippi Manufacturers Association and the Diamond-head Community Church.

The Port Bienville plant, with a total payroll of $5 million, is structured with employee involvement or participative management as an operating style. Since operations began, Borg-Warner personnel have not had a lost day from work due to injury on the job.

Kowal states that plant priorities include safety, equipment, housekeeping, quality, service, production and costs.

Borg-Warner Chemicals, Inc., according to Kowal, considers the Hancock County area a good place to do business because the area provides competitive goods and services to the facility.

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the local citizenry appreciate all of the members of the Borg-Warner family and the roles that they play in this community. The facility is an asset to Hancock County and we are truly proud of it.

PLANT EXPANSION—Borg-Warner located at Port Bienville Industrial Park completed a $60 million addition in 1987. The plant produces 110,000,000 pounds of phenylene ether polymer annually. Borg-Warner also produces Cycolas at Port Bienville plant.

AIRCRAFT DEVELOPMENT—Smith & Smith Aircraft's Stennis International Airpark plant is involved in aircraft development.

STEEL FABRICATION—Bienville Steel located at Port Bienville Industrial Park is involved in steel fabrication.

Bay Technical Associates plans new products, expansion in 1988

Bay Technical Associates, Inc., already expanded twice, plans new growth during 1988.

BayTech, an electronics manufacturing firm, was founded in August 1976 in response to growing interest by industry and government for instruments in the meteorological, oceanographic and hydrographic environments, according to Elaine J. Bean, advertising manager.

In 1983, BayTech formed its commercial Data Communications Products Division to provide support products for the computer industry.

The Electronic Systems Division was formed in 1987 to specialize in federal, state and local government contracts.

The Data Communications Products Division recently moved into newly renovated quarters at 200 North Second Street, in a building formerly occupied by a Jitney Jungle store.

The Electronic Systems Division, located on Highway 603, was awarded two contracts to produce data communications equipment for the U.S. Navy.

"We project business growth to be 50 percent in 1988 with the introduction of several new products and continued growth in sales of current products," Bean said.

"These factors will necessitate an increase in the present work force and expansion into new research and development and manufacturing facilities."

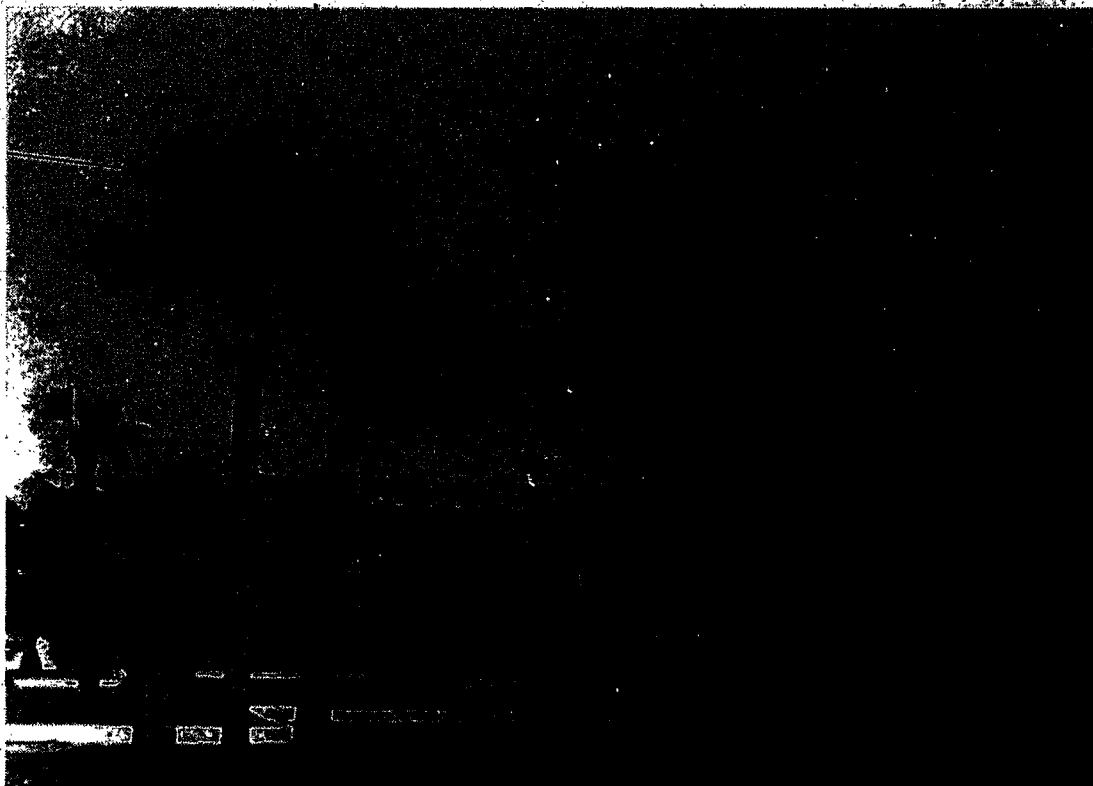

"Hancock County is not really our market area, as we sell nationwide and worldwide. However, the area is a good place for us to operate because of the high-technology labor available."

Charles R. Ramsey is general manager of Bay Technical and Phillip Kies is Electronic Systems Division manager. Pat Harvill serves as personnel manager and John Irwin serves as purchasing manager. Also included are Nancy Ramsey, accounting manager, Bruce Rushing, engineering manager; Sharon Warzecha, sales manager; and Andy Ramsey, production manager.

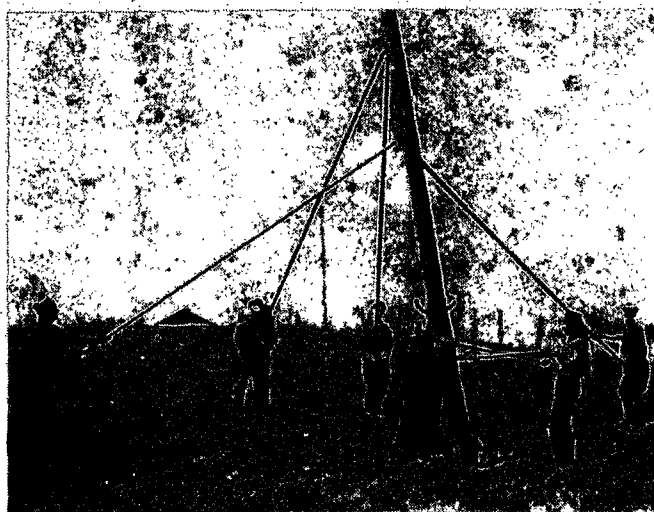

BayTech's employees are active as a group in community affairs, having supported such causes as Red Cross Blood Drives and the March of Dimes Walk America.

Several employees are also active on an individual basis. Harvill is on the Hancock County United Way board of directors, Gordon Boh serves on the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission, Teri Oliver is an American Diabetes Association board member, Bean and Bruce Rushing are members of the Hancock County Animal Commission and Linda Self is a member of Royal Ambassadors.

EXPANDING INDUSTRY—Bay Technical Associates located at North Second Street in Bay St. Louis and Highway 603 Waveland expects to increase business by 50 percent in 1988 with the introduction of several new products and continued growth sales of current products.

"OWNED BY THOSE IT SERVES"

At Coast Electric, we provide electric power to nearly 40,000 consumers across a three county service area.

We work hard to ensure that adequate, dependable electric service will be available as needed in South Mississippi. Reliable power demands constant planning.

You can be confident that the electricity you depend on today will be just as dependable tomorrow and in the years to come. For at Coast Electric, our job is never finished. . . . We're committed to meet the future needs of your growing community.

Some say Mississippi is old-fashioned. When it comes to our work ethic, we couldn't agree more. If you're interested in an available labor force that still believes in the real meaning of work, call our Economic Development group. (601) 865-5850.
